An efficient and accurate method for computation of energy release rates in beam structures with longitudinal cracks