Phylloquinone content from wild green vegetables may contribute substantially to dietary intake. Bügel, S. G., Spagner, C., Poulsen, S. K., Jakobsen, J., & Astrup, A. (2016). Phylloquinone content from wild green vegetables may contribute substantially to dietary intake. Canadian Journal of Agriculture and Crops, 1(2), 83-88. DOI: 10.20448/803.1.2.83.88