A method to join data from a National Travel Survey of individuals into travel behaviour of families – with the driving pattern of the household cars as an example. Christensen, L. (2014). In 10th International Conference on Transport Survey Methods.