Correction of stray magnetic fields caused by cable currents is essential for human in-vivo brain magnetic resonance current density imaging (MRCDI).