Energy demand flexibility in buildings and district heating systems – a literature review