Microbial degradation of keratin-rich porcine by-products for protein hydrolysate production: a process engineering perspective